Winter Sports Boom In New England Hills

Skiing Growing Swiftly as the Popular Pastime.

BOSTON.—The winter sports "industry" in the skiing areas of northern New England is in full blast. Usually the winter-time activities reach a peak over Washington's birthday or in March, but this year skiing began in northern Vermont as early as mid-November, and practically every important area is reporting "good" to "excellent" conditions, an unheard of phenomenon for so early in the season.

Hotels are packed in all but the more remote areas. At North Conway's Eastern Slope inn, 6,000 people fought for the 260 accommodations available. A record-breaking season is reported for the entire area.

The White mountains of New Hampshire, Green mountains of Vermont and the Berkshire hills in western Massachusetts comprise the most intensively developed winter sports region in the country, all within easy reach of populous New York City and southern New England.

In this area some 700 inns in 210 towns throw open their doors for the cold weather business. This year 233 ski tows and lifts—25 per cent more than were in operation last year—are dragging people uphill to risk life and limb on 1,500 miles of downhill ski trails. At present there are believed to be upward of 300,000 skiers in the six-state territory.

Flirting in Youth Termed Experience for Marriage

LONDON.—Flirts got a kind word from Dr. Marjorie Tait, organizing secretary of the London Union of Mixed Clubs and Girls Clubs.

Speaking at a conference on family relations, she said: "There is no more civilizing influence in the life of the boy and girl growing up through adolescence than adequate opportunities for flirtation, because flirtation, properly done, is part of the art of living.

"Without adequate and sufficient opportunities for flirtation, boys and girls often commit themselves as life partners too soon, before they have sufficient experience of the range of human personality."

Novel 'Cancer Candle' Spurs Donations to Fund

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—They call it "The Miracle of the Candle."

Six months ago a power shortage dimmed the lights in the Vulcan restaurant, atop Red mountain here. Owners Wallace Meshad and Nick Haddad met the emergency with candles. One was placed on the cashier's counter.

A late diner reached across the counter to pay his check that night. The candle flame singed his hand. A few coins spilled into the melted tallow at the candle's base. He tried once or twice to retrieve the money but finally went out without it.

Meshad and Haddad had an idea. They remembered the little boxes the Cancer society had placed on the same counter many times before.

They put up a sign by the candle: "Please contribute to the cancer fund." And the customers responded. Hardly one left without sticking a coin in the soft wax.

Haddad estimates they have used about 500 candles. The tallow with its coins has grown into a grotesque shape. The sign still stands beside it. The flame burns continuously and the customers still put coins in the dripping wax.

The column now has grown so large it is in danger of tipping over. Mrs. Raj Meade, executive director of the Alabama division, American Cancer society, says she can't estimate the amount. Haddad believes it's more than $200.

Cancer society officials said the "cancer candle" idea was catching on all over the country.

Rush Building of Bridge In Race to Beat Stork

MEHAMA, ORE.—Isolated mountain folk shouted encouragement across a flood-swollen river to a highway crew building a new bridge for three expectant mothers cut off from hospital care and telephone communication.

The last readily passable road into the Elkhorn valley settlement, 27 miles southeast of Salem, had caved in. In the absence of a helicopter or a breeches buoy, the Elkhorn people were marooned.

Word was relayed from Elkhorn valley that two women, Mrs. Gordon Knox, 25, wife of a sawmill worker, and Mrs. Roy Roberts, 25, wife of a lumberjack, were expecting babies "any minute now." Messages also told of a third unidentified expectant mother.

Construction of a pre-fabricated Bailey bridge across the rampaging Santiam river proceeded at top speed under direction of Judge Grant Murphy, chief commissioner of Marion county. (He's also county judge in Oregon.)

The old bridge collapsed under the weight of a logging truck. The accident in effect stranded 100 families. There is no doctor in the valley.

Egyptian 'Sells' Street Car To Villager as Investment

CAIRO, EGYPT.—American bluesky artists have joked for years about "selling" Brooklyn bridge. But it remained for an Egyptian to "sell" a street car.

Ramadan Abu Zeid, the man who did precisely that, has just been released from prison after two and one-half years at hard labor.

His feat, which was the talk of Cairo, won him the sneaking admiration of many British and American soldiers who were here at the time.

Abu Zaid met his victim, a villager from Upper Egypt, at a local sidewalk cafe. When the villager confided that he had sold his house and donkey and had come to Cairo to invest the proceeds in a profitable business venture, Abu Zeid suggested that a street car would be just the thing.

He took the villager riding on No. 30, one of the most crowded street car lines in Cairo, and convinced him that he would make a fortune.

The villager paid 20 pounds — about $250—in return for Abu Zeid's "deed of sale."

The crime was discovered following a fight the villager had with "his street car's" conductor, who refused to hand over "his profits" to him at the end of the line.

Sane Man, Freed by Asylum, Now Faces Murder Charge

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—A sane man who for almost 22 years walked among maniacs in a Massachusetts institution for the criminally insane has been restored to the normal world. But he is not yet free.

The man is Richard A. Bearse who—almost a quarter of a century ago—murdered his mother in a crime that shocked the country.

Then a brilliant young Springfield engineer, he was found kneeling over the body of Mrs. Etta A. Bearse on the morning of August 6, 1926, in the Bearse home.

Investigators said she had been tortured and mutilated by her son through a whole night of terror, and finally died with Richard's strangling fingers around her neck.

Now Bearse is to be placed on trial for that murder.

In the interval, he has been in the Bridgewater State Hospital for the Criminally Insane. For all but three months of those 22 years, alienists now say, Bearse was sane—a man with a healthy mind living among lunatics.

Dove Faces Extermination Unless Protection Extended

It is questionable how long the mourning dove (classed as a game bird, but rightly entitled to be classed as a songbird), can withstand the mounting hunting pressure to which it is being subjected. The vast increase of hunters and accuracy of modern firearms, the ease with which these birds can be shot from telephone wires, and their natural mortality and habit of brooding only two eggs at a setting, all combine to spell the doom of the doves, despite their great value to agriculture as weed-seed eaters.

In view of these circumstances, the Dominion of Canada and all of the northwestern states except Illinois have placed the doves under complete protection. But this protective legislation is nullified and defeated by states that have an annual open season, because the migrating flocks, on which the Northwest depends for increase, are decimated to the point where not enough breeders return to keep up the numbers. In Minnesota, which has had 15-day open seasons up to 1946, the estimated kill fell from 41,118 in 1939 to 17,377 in 1946, although the hunters increased nearly 80,000. Even in the far South the peril of the doves now is recognized and hunting is being curtailed by game directors.

Jobs Are Sought For Skilled DPs

Listings Include Doctors, Engineers, Scientists, Technical Workers.

GENEVA, SWITZERLAND. — A human mail order catalog is being prepared here by the resettlement department of the International Refugee organization.

Faced with the task of finding new homes for 40,000 displaced persons with technical skills, the department is compiling a list of individual refugees for circulation to governments and interested organizations.

The first installment of 120 names will be sent out early this year. Others will follow.

The lists will provide complete information about each individual, his age, nationality, background, training, experience and other qualifications, as well as similar information about each member of his family.

May Reject Offers.

Governments will be able to select persons from the catalog to assist their economic, industrial or agricultural development, to extend their social or medical services or to train their own technicians in a particular field. The displaced persons, however, will be free to reject any offers.

A new registration of specialists among the 1,500,000 displaced persons in Europe and Asia is being undertaken by the IRO, and is expected to uncover more than 40,000 technical and scientific workers eligible for inclusion in the catalog.

The IRO has set up a special board of refugees in each camp to check claims and give some assurance that the qualifications in the catalog are genuine.

First edition of the catalog runs from agronomist to x-ray technician. It includes physicians, dentists, surgeons, architects, chemists, dieticians, engineers, nurses, teachers, interpreters, veterinarians and a score of other professions.

Diverse Nationalities.

Their nationalities are as diverse as their qualifications, including Poles, Estonians, Hungarians, Yugoslavs, Latvians, Czechs, Ukrainians and Lithuanians, as well as a substantial number who describe themselves as "stateless." Although most of these specialists came from countries under Soviet domination since the war, there also are a few Germans who suffered Nazi persecution and isolated cases from western Europe.

Page after page, the list gives glimpses of the misfortunes of Europeans uprooted by the war.

While names in the catalog represent the best trained and qualified displaced persons, they are the most difficult to resettle, according to IRO officials, who claim that national immigration missions, selecting displaced persons from the camps, concentrate on unskilled and semi-skilled manual workers.

The new catalog will be circulated, in English, French, Spanish and Portuguese, to North and South America, Africa, Australia, New Zealand and any other country likely to accept displaced persons, as well as to United Nations bodies, religious groups and other voluntary organizations interested in resettlement of refugees. Local IRO offices will circulate extracts to business, industrial and professional organizations and other potential employers.

Auto Made on West Coast Weighs Only 600 Pounds

SAN DIEGO.—Weighing only 600 pounds and designed to sell for $595 F.O.B. San Diego, a new light automobile is being introduced by International Motor Car company, a new Pacific coast manufacturer.

The company announced its factory at San Diego is being equipped with almost $500,000 worth of machinery and tools. Production, already under way on cars for dealer display, will be geared for an output of 100 cars a day in the spring, according to S. A. Williams, president. He formerly was associated with the now-defunct Bobbi Motor Car corporation.

The new two-passenger convertible, called the Towne Shopper, will be promoted as a "second" car for American families, Williams said. It will feature many aluminum parts, including wheels and a 10-horsepower motor installed in the rear. Underneath the front hood will be a large compartment for luggage or groceries.

War or Depression Needed To Halt 'New Look' Craze

ATLANTA, GA. — The only thing that will wean women away from the current "new look" is another war or a depression.

So says Tobe, fashion consultant for more than 200 retail stores in this country, England, Canada, Honolulu and Australia.

Tobe says fashion is merely a reflection of women's lives." During the war, she explained, women dressed more like men because they were doing men's jobs.

When the war ended and the boys came home, women immediately became more feminine again.

Therefore, Tobe declared, "the new look is not a designer's ivory-tower dream, but a natural evolution."

Hoover's Brother Is Adept at Slugging Sea Lions With Bat

OAKLAND, CALIF.—The brother of former President Herbert Hoover is pretty good at slugging sea lions over the head with a baseball bat, says Photographer Sid Snow, who has watched such encounters. And it's all because of the slugger's love for salmon.

At a certain time each year, Snow explains, breakers crash through sand dunes blocking an inlet to the sea at Theodore Hoover's Rancho del Oso near Davenport—and salmon rush in to spawn.

Sea lions, scenting a feast, follow the salmon—and meet Hoover, hipbooted and armed with a baseball bat.

Moisture, Not Faulty Paint, Causes 'Blisters' to Form

In localities of high humidity or heavy rainfall, recently applied paint films sometimes "blister" and give rise to a supposition that the paint may have been faulty. Such an impression is a misconception of the real cause of the trouble. National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer association points out that moisture and not the paint generally is responsible for the blistering.

Blistering generally is due to moisture within or upon the surface of the material to which the paint is applied. As a rule, it is more likely to be due to moisture within rather than upon the surface.

If saturated wood is covered with two or more coats of paint and then quickly exposed to the sun, the water within the wood may be drawn to the surface, and push up the top coats of paint in the form of a blister. Usually greater quantities of water than are contained in new wood are required to show such a phenomenon. As a rule, blisters are due to the water from new plaster, excessive humidification, steamy kitchens and bathrooms, leaks in plumbing or leaks that admit rain. Tremendous quantities of water condense on the back of the siding and then migrate to the underside of paint films. Here the water collects and forms the blisters.

Although blisters may include even the priming coat of paint, it usually is found that the blister is formed of the outer coats of paint, the priming coat being still attached to the wood.

Regardless of whether you approve the new look in fashion, every one of my nieces and nephews certainly is in the style with the new look in security. How can you acquire this kind of look? These are two great automatic plans, both sure and convenient: 1. If you work for wages or salary—join the Pay-Roll Savings Plan for buying United States Savings Bonds regularly. This is the only installment bond-buying plan. 2. If you're in business or a profession, or living on an income—sign up at your bank for the Bond-A-Month Plan.
